The Center on Violence Against Women and Children (VAWC) provides a supportive educational environment for students at all levels, including recent doctoral graduates. Cited as a “leading research institute” by the White House, VAWC offers numerous violence against women and children-related research projects from federally funded randomized control trials to community-based program evaluations.

Current Projects include:

- Impact of economic empowerment curriculum with domestic violence survivors evaluation, supported by The Allstate Foundation (P.I. Dr. Postmus)
- Peer-led interactive theatre program intended to prevent sexual violence on college campus evaluation (P.I. Dr. McMahon; co-PI Dr. Postmus)
- Campus Climate Assessment on sexual violence (P.I. Dr. McMahon)

REQUIREMENTS

- PhD in Social Work or a related field
- Experience with research on violence against women and children and/or working with survivors
- Experience with advanced statistics like SEM – Preferred
- Experience working with longitudinal datasets – Preferred
- Grant writing experience – Preferred

Submit letter of interest, CV, and contact info of 3 references to Dr. Judy L. Postmus (postmus@ssw.rutgers.edu)